

BUSINESS ETHICS

OVERVIEW

OBJECTIVES

Individuals and businesses have a responsibility to act ethically in the workplace and where unethical practices occur, trust from colleagues, employees, partners and clients can be eroded.

Although 'doing the right thing' at work might seem quite straightforward, there will still be times when you have an element of doubt in your own actions. This can happen where different values clash. It's important to be aware of these scenarios and to know how to act responsibly.

Business ethics helps determine what you should and shouldn't do in a business setting and employees have a responsibility to act correctly with the information that is shared with them. It is also important that employees know what to do when business ethics are being breached.

This course aims to provide the information necessary for learners to understand and apply business ethics in their workplace. It will help them make the right decisions and to respond appropriately.

- To put it simply, this course is aimed at ensuring employees act ethically in the workplace
- Understand the main principles of ethics in the workplace
- Explain the importance of ethical behaviour on an individual and company level
- Identify what rights you as an employee are entitled to
- Apply ethical behaviour in the workplace, through theory and practical tasks

DURATION

20 minutes including interactions and assessment.

AUDIENCE

This online learning course applies to all employees with an organisation. This may include: Directors, Managers, Team Leaders, Consultants and Employees.

CERTIFICATION

Upon completion of the course the learner will receive a CPD certificate.

